10 AI | Chrome Extensions
for Data Scientists

Discover powerful Chrome extensions for data scientists that can help with research, summarizing papers, generating ChatGPT prompts, detecting AI, coding autopilot, data scraping, web surfing, and content generation.

SciSpace Copilot

AI-powered research assistant who can help you understand the text, math, and tables in scientific literature.

Originality.AI

It helps you identify whether the content you are reading has been generated using an AI writing tool.

Data Scraper

An automated data extraction tool for any website. It uses AI to predict which data is most relevant on a HTML page and save in Excel or CSV.
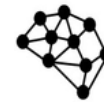

Fireflies

AI assistant powered by GPT4. It can surf the web and summarize articles, YouTube videos, emails, and documents just like a human.

CodeSquire.AI

A code writing assistant for data scientists that can take on any coding challenge. It supports JupyterLab, Colab, and more.

Sider

A helpful tool that allows you to manipulate any text. You can select, explain, translate, summarize, or rewrite text as needed.

CatalyzeX

Get the implementation code for machine learning and AI research papers effortlessly through Google Search, ArXiv, Github, and more.

AIPRM

Provides a list of curated prompt templates for DevOps, Generative AI, Software engineering, and Productivity.

Codeium

A free code acceleration toolkit. It provides code completion tool in over 20+ languages, with lightning fast speeds and suggestion quality.

Grammarly GO

It understand your context, preferences, and goals to instantly generate high-quality drafts, outlines, replies, and revisions.

Subscribe to KDnuggets News

Abid Ali Awan | 2023